

Product Description

The 555C provides an easy way for interfacing remote start products with vehicles' OEM transponder-based anti-theft systems, while maintaining the integrity of the OEM systems. The 555C uses a very small electronic chip hidden in the top of the key to send a code to the vehicle's transceiver whenever the ignition is energized. For this to happen the key must be placed in the ignition and turned to the RUN position. This energizes a coil surrounding the key, which in turn energizes the chip which sends the signal to the vehicle. If the vehicle does not detect the code being sent, the car will start and then immediately shut off and the anti-theft light will flash. The 555C will provide a valid code to the vehicle whenever it is remote started, but will have no effect on the OEM anti-theft system during normal operation of the vehicle. The OEM transponder-based anti-theft system remains fully functional.

IMPORTANT! The 555C interface module is designed to work with DEI remote start systems that have a wait-to-start input wire. This wire delays cranking of the starter and is required for programming the 555C. Some non-DEI remote start systems may not have a wait-to-start input, and therefore may not be compatible with the 555C interface module.

Identifying the Antenna Ring

Remove the steering column shroud and locate the ignition switch. There is a plastic ring surrounding the ignition switch, which is the coil or antenna ring where the 555C chip will be mounted. After programming of the 555C is complete, mount the chip securely in a location appropriate to the vehicle make and model.

Wire Connection Guide

RED (+)12V: Connect this wire to a fused (+)12V source.

BLUE (-) ACTIVATION INPUT: Connect this wire to the (-) through activation output of the remote start system.

555C CHIP: The chip should be placed on the outside of the antenna ring as close to the ribbon cable as possible.

NOTE: The example for capsule mounting location shown at the right is provided as a general reference only. Actual mounting locations for other vehicle makes and models may vary. Additional capsule mounting locations for specific vehicles can be found on DEI's technical website, www.directechs.com.
